Continuing the Certified Public Manager (CPM) course through UGA.

• Courses are generally on the 3rd week each month and will be the first and third week in May. These usually require my physical absence from the Tuesday meetings. I will continue to participate by phone or virtual.

ABM update for energy efficiency agreement

• Courthouse Clerks office renovation moving along well.
• Other sites are being taken care of as far as lighting and HVAC replacements.

ABM Tired Creek proposal

• Water quality testing will take place next to ensure the overall project parameters will be doable.
  o Mr. Han, the Engineer, and lead consultant for ABM on this is visiting regularly and continues to prepare his proposal for the company to review and decide if they are in a position to make an offer to the Lake Authority and the County Commissioners. Based on our last conversations, all looks very good and we should see an official proposal by August that will be available for the governing entities to decide the next step. ABM has been very good to keep us informed as they move forward with this process.

On a personal/professional note…

While potholes, trash, roads, the lake, and other issues certainly matter to me - they are not my passion and calling in life – they are tasks that must be addressed, and they will be. My concern and what I pray about constantly, is the professionals of public safety and our soldiers that sacrifice their own safety and lives daily to protect us all from the wolves of the world. While certainly I have felt this way for years and have lived and voiced it time and again, it could not have hit home more than this week as I know how real this became to the Bedwell family in Decatur County and all the LEOs that had the pleasure of working with such a truly dedicated officer... Decatur County Deputy Justin Bedwell. Late Saturday evening I heard about the incident as it was going on and that Deputy Bedwell had suffered a serious shooting injury. On Monday, I received the news that Justin had passed away and my heart sunk. I quickly focused on the tragedy that his entire family has suffered and the fact that their entire world was now turned upside down and would never be the same again. True tragedy comes in many forms and we as humans often fail to recognize the magnitude of it on the families, friends and co-workers affected by it. The Death of loved ones is always tragic, especially when its unexpected or worse at the hand of a senseless criminal act. My prayers go out to the Bedwell family and all the millions of families who have suffered these type losses in their lives. Nothing can prepare us for that type of shock, and nothing can be said that will ever put it to rest. True public safety heroes never go to work, but rather follow the calling to protect and serve at all costs. Deputy Justin Bedwell followed his calling daily and will be sorely missed by all who knew him.

I remember a wise man telling me (after I finished a long rant over some mundane, personal, insignificant complaint I had at the time); “Buddy; there are people who would love to live your worst day”. He could not have been more on target, and I came to understand the fact that there are a lot of little problems out there that make us ill or cause us stress, but situations like this tragedy and so many others that have occurred override those little inconvenient issues and help remind me that we are far more blessed than we realize from day to day and being thankful is much more positive than being miserable, for we never know what true tragedy may await us around the next bend.

My request is that we continue to support our public safety hero’s as they continue to support and protect us every day without hesitation. The money will never be enough, and the hours will always run long, but as any true public safety hero will tell you... “It’s not a job, it’s a calling”. They deserve our respect and our moral support--- always.

Mrs. Copeland requested prayers for Chris Dix.
